

"EMPIRE UNITAS X"

The Classing Committee today considered this case, but before deciding whether to assign a class they would be glad to learn from the Chief Ship Surveyor's Staff whether they consider that 90 fathoms of cable is sufficient for this type of ship, or whether they regard it as "seriously deficient" in the terms of the present equipment Rule.

It is considered that 120 Fathoms of Cable is the minimum length that should be accepted, in this case, for classification purposes. The length supplied i.e. 90 fms is therefore regarded as being "seriously deficient" in the terms of the present equipment rule.
