The Secretary,
London.

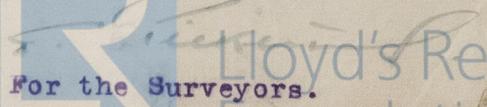

Dear Sir,

Referring to your query of the 16th March, regarding the propeller shaft survey of the train ferry "Changkiang", we enclose a letter received from the Ministry of Railways in reply to one from us on the subject.

The Surveyors here were not aware that the vessel had drydocked at this port and no notification was received from the Owners or Dockyard.

It is unlikely that the vessel will be drydocked before 1937, and our experience with vessels employed in the Yangtze River (fresh water) and fitted with Oil Glands is that they may safely run for a period of four years provided the oil gland is holding the oil satisfactorily. The shafts and glands were, of course, examined by the Surveyors to the Bureau of Navigation, and in the circumstances we beg to request that the Committee will allow this vessel's class to remain as at present subject to examination of tail shafts at the next docking.

We are, Dear Sir,
Yours faithfully,

For the Surveyors.
